

Jessie Burns

Jessie Burns grew up in England in a large and musical family, surrounded with Irish Culture and music through her Dad's side of the family. She has been playing multiple instruments including the violin since the age of 8 and is an active member of the Colorado Irish music scene, teaching lessons and workshops and performing both locally and nationally.

Jessie has recorded with many musicians including Gregory Allan Isakov, The Mollie O'Brien Band and The Wayfarers to name a few. She is best known for the six years she spent touring internationally with American Irish Super-group, Gaelic Storm, with whom she recorded three #1 Billboard World Music hit albums. She left the band in 2012 to trade a life on the road for time at home with her two young daughters.

She is currently working on a solo album and is in numerous Colorado based music projects including playing traditional Irish fiddle with Take Down the Door, and Bluegrass/Americana in Run off the Rooster. Her most recent collaboration is The Bow Tides, where she has joined up with renowned fiddlers Ellery Klein and Katie Grennan. Jessie resides with her husband, bass player Eric Thorin, in Lyons, Colorado.